Many Graduating ESL Teachers Were Once ESL Learners

April 07, 2020 02:02 PM

International students in the U.S. usually learn English in their home countries before coming to study at American universities and colleges. But for one group of international students at American University in Washington, developing materials for teaching English as a second language to help immigrants is part of their master's program in education. In Washington, Esha Sarai has more.
